

ONE-ON-ONES

A 1:1 creates value when it changes what the person does next week.

The conversation that moves the result, or just a time clock with coffee.

AND THE CONSEQUENCE

If nothing changes, it was just a meeting.

THE CASCADE

Almost every 1:1 dies in the same place.

WHAT YOU SEE

You repeat what is already in the report.

THE MECHANISM

The person answers that everything is fine.

THE CONSEQUENCE

You both walk out exactly as you walked in.

If the dashboard already says it, the conversation does not need to.

THE FORK

There is only one yardstick.

THE YARDSTICK

01

Only the calendar changed? That was a meeting.

02

Only the mood changed? That was venting.

03

A decision changed? That was a 1:1.

Value is not in the meeting, it is in the decision that comes out of it.

THE METHOD

The 4M of a 1:1 that moves.

01 MARK

what has to be standing six months from now

02 MOUNTAIN

what is blocking, inside what the person controls

03 MOVE

what gets done, and who owns each part

04 MILESTONE

when we review, and what counts as progress

Four questions, twenty minutes, one decision.

WHAT TO ASK, IN ORDER

Trade the small talk for the right question.

01 • MARK

What has to be true six months from now?

and how your work moves it

02 • MOUNTAIN

Which metric you control is out of place?

and what is stopping you from turning it around

03 • MOVE

How do we turn this around?

what is yours, what is mine

04 • MILESTONE

When do we revisit this?

and what counts as real progress

TWO MODELS

Two conversations, two outcomes.

THE COMMON MODEL

Check in meeting

Reviews the past

Chases what the person cannot control

Produces defensiveness and silence

Ends in meeting minutes

THE DESIGNED MODEL

Conversation that moves

Aims at what is coming

Digs into what the person moves

Produces autonomy and energy

Ends in an agreement with a date

MISTAKE AND CONSEQUENCE

Three mistakes that empty the room.

01 Repeating what is already in the report.

→ the person checks out in the first two minutes.

02 Chasing what the person cannot control.

→ that creates fear, not results.

03 Closing with no revisit date.

→ follow up without a date is just intention.

| The first two create fear, the third creates disbelief.

THE CHAIN

The vacation test.

01

You take two weeks of vacation.

02

The operation stops, and everything waits for you.

03

Then you are not leading, you became the bottleneck.

WHERE LEADERSHIP STEPS IN

The 1:1 is where you transfer judgment, not where you check tasks.

RUN IT THIS WAY NEXT TIME

Run it this way next time.

With no decision and no date, it does not count as a 1:1.

THE MODEL THAT STICKS

The 4M, a loop and not a list.

A 1:1 is not a time clock, it is where the decision is born.

SAVE THIS FOR LATER

in your next 1:1.

FABIO GARCIA

MANAGEMENT AS ENGINEERING

/IN/FALERCIA