

TRUST

Trust is not asked for, it is given.

How to build it from zero with a new team, with no miracle from above.

AND THE CONSEQUENCE

Whoever waits to receive it first waits forever.

THE CASCADE

The leader who waits before trusting.

WHAT YOU SEE

You wait for the team to prove it deserves it...

THE MECHANISM

...you hold back decisions, information and risk...

THE CONSEQUENCE

...and the team does exactly the same to you.

| Distrust is a mirror, and the mirror starts with the leader.

THE FORK

Trust is not a speech, it is a gesture.

THE YARDSTICK

01

Saying you trust? That is intent.

02

Handing over a real decision? That is trust.

03

The team believes what you release, not what you say.

Trust is the only thing you receive after you hand it over.

THE METHOD

GIVE, four gestures that build trust from zero.

01 GO FIRST

trust first, before you are trusted

02 IN THE ROOM

split the risk, board the same flight they do

03 VOW KEPT

integrity when it costs, not only when it is easy

04 EVIDENCE

consistent delivery, proof that the effort counts

| Trust is not a feeling, it is a stack of gestures.

WHAT TO ASK, IN ORDER

What it looks like day to day.

01 • GO FIRST

Go first.

hand over a real decision in week one, not just a task

02 • IN THE ROOM

In the room.

take the hit with them in the hard meeting, not in the hallway

03 • VOW KEPT

Vow kept.

tell the bad news before it leaks through another door

04 • EVIDENCE

Evidence.

pick a fast, visible delivery, so the team wins with you

TWO MODELS

The one who waits and the one who builds.

THE COMMON MODEL

Waits to receive

Demands proof before trusting

Holds back information

Shows up only when it goes bad

Harvests a team that protects itself

THE DESIGNED MODEL

Gives first

Hands over decisions early

Opens the full picture

Is there when it gets heavy

Harvests a team that speaks up

MISTAKE AND CONSEQUENCE

Three ways to lose months of building.

01 Promising what you do not control.

→ one broken promise erases ten good calls.

02 Vanishing when the risk shows up.

→ the team remembers who was in the room on the hard day.

03 Talking down a team member to another one.

→ whoever hears it knows they will be talked about too.

| Trust takes months to build, and falls in one sentence.

THE CHAIN

The bad news test.

01

Something goes wrong on the team.

02

You find out weeks later, from someone else? No trust.

03

The person tells you the same day? The trust is real.

WHERE LEADERSHIP STEPS IN

A team that trusts brings problems early, a team that fears brings them too late.

RUN IT THIS WAY NEXT TIME

In the first thirty days with a new team.

STEP 01

Hand over a real decision in the first week.

small in impact, large in signal

STEP 02

Pick a fast, visible win, and take it with them.

STEP 03

Tell the full picture, including what is still unresolved.

| Thirty days of gestures beat one introduction meeting.

THE MODEL THAT STICKS

GIVE, a loop and not a list.

Trust is not asked for. It is given, and it comes back doubled.

SAVE THIS FOR LATER
in your first week with a new team.
