

RECOGNITION

Generic praise does not offend, it simply does not count.

How to praise in a way that actually lands.

AND THE CONSEQUENCE

What lands shows you saw the detail she thought nobody saw.

THE CASCADE

Why congratulations never stick.

WHAT YOU SEE

You say good job for the effort and for the minimum...

THE MECHANISM

...the person sees that what she delivered made no difference...

THE CONSEQUENCE

...and on the next challenge she saves her energy.

The same praise for different deliveries is a ruler saying it makes no difference.

THE FORK

One quick test before you praise.

THE QUICK TEST

01

Would it fit anyone on the team? That is noise.

02

Does it only mention the result that showed? That is a report.

03

Does it mention what she did to get there? That is recognition.

What lands is not the number, it is the fight nobody saw.

THE METHOD

The three part praise.

01 FACT

exactly what she did, with the detail only a witness knows

02 IMPACT

what changed because of it, for the client or the result

03 STAGE

who else has to hear about it, and you are the one who tells them

With no stage, praise is pleasant. With a stage, it becomes standing.

IN PRACTICE, IN ORDER

The same praise, rewritten.

01 • FACT

Nice work on the project.

generic, fits anyone, forgotten the same day

02 • IMPACT

You found the integration bug that was blocking everything.

a specific fact, proof you were paying attention

03 • STAGE

That handed two weeks back to the schedule.

impact in a number, it gives her work a size

04

I told the board about it, with your name on it.

the stage, and this is where recognition becomes currency

TWO MODELS

Praise that passes or praise that stays.

THE COMMON MODEL

Passes

Congratulations on the effort

Said in passing in the hallway

The same for everyone

Gone the same day

THE DESIGNED MODEL

Stays

Names the detail she solved

Said in front of the people who matter

Unique, because the feat was unique

Becomes a story other people tell

MISTAKE AND CONSEQUENCE

Three ways to praise and not land.

01 Praising and tacking on a grievance in the same sentence.

- the but erases everything before it, only the grievance stays.

02 Praising the whole team when the feat belonged to one person.

- whoever carried it notices, and whoever did nothing learns it pays.

03 Praising two months later, in a formal review.

- recognition has a short shelf life, days, not quarters.

| Late recognition is not recognition, it is record keeping.

THE CHAIN

The third person test.

01

Someone outside your area mentions what she did.

02

Nobody outside the room knows? The praise died there.

03

The story travelled? You created standing.

WHERE LEADERSHIP STEPS IN

The biggest praise is not what you say to her, it is what you say about her.

RUN IT THIS WAY NEXT TIME

Fifteen minutes, and the effect lasts months.

STEP 01

Pick one win from the week and write the fact in one line.

the concrete detail, not the behavior category

STEP 02

Add the impact in a number or in a client.

time handed back, rework avoided, a problem that stayed fixed

STEP 03

Tell the story where the person is not.

a peer meeting, a message to your boss, the weekly committee

Praise given in public comes back as energy for the next challenge.

THE MODEL THAT STICKS

The Three Part Praise, in the order that matters.

Good job leaves no mark on anyone. What marks is who tells her story.

SAVE THIS FOR LATER

on the next delivery that deserves more than congratulations.
