

FOLLOW UP

When tracking depends on your memory, it becomes random.

How to track what was agreed without chasing anyone.

AND THE CONSEQUENCE

And random pressure feels like being hunted.

THE CASCADE

The follow up born from remembering.

WHAT YOU SEE

You remember one topic and push on that one...

THE MECHANISM

...another sits for months with nobody looking, with no criteria...

THE CONSEQUENCE

...and the team feels surveillance with no predictability.

Pressure that arrives as a surprise produces anxiety, not delivery.

THE FORK

Who is doing the chasing here.

WHO IS CHASING

01

— ☐ If it depends on your memory, that is hunting.

02

— ☐ If it depends on an agreed date, that is a ritual.

03

— ☒ If the number itself shows the gap, that is a system.

The less you have to remember, the longer the agreement survives.

THE METHOD

The three knots of follow up.

01 THE AGREEMENT

written, visible to both, with an owner and a date

02 THE RHYTHM

a fixed review date, set the same day as the agreement

03 THE SIGNAL

what forces an early warning, without waiting for the date

| With the three knots, the agreement does the chasing, not you.

IN PRACTICE, IN ORDER

The meeting that replaces ten follow ups.

01 • THE AGREEMENT

What closed since last time.

start with what moved, and it changes the tone of the whole talk

02 • THE RHYTHM

What is stuck, and waiting on what.

this is where the thing only you can unblock shows up

03 • THE SIGNAL

What is the priority until next time.

three things at most, the rest is a list, not a priority

04

When we look again.

the date comes out of the meeting, never gets settled later

TWO MODELS

Chasing or tending.

THE COMMON MODEL

Chasing

Pushes whenever you remember

Asks is it done yet

Shows up only when it slips

The team hides the problem

THE DESIGNED MODEL

Tending

Reviews on an agreed date

Asks what is blocking it

Shows up when it moves too

The team warns before it blows up

MISTAKE AND CONSEQUENCE

Three habits that corrode trust.

01 Pushing outside working hours because you remembered now.

- the urgency is yours, the weight lands on someone else's night.

02 Asking about the agreement in front of the team.

- it becomes exposure, and the answer comes back defensive by default.

03 Asking for a new report every time you have a doubt.

- you just created work to keep track of work.

| Follow up is a diagnosis, not a hunt for a culprit.

THE CHAIN

The Sunday test.

01

Did you feel the urge to send a message on Sunday?

02

Just to find out whether something moved?

03

That is not dedication, it is a missing ritual.

WHERE LEADERSHIP STEPS IN

Once a review date exists, the Sunday anxiety disappears on its own.

RUN IT THIS WAY NEXT TIME

How to install the three knots this week.

STEP 01

Put the agreements on one visible list.

one line per item, with owner and date, open to both of you

STEP 02

Book the fifteen minute ritual, same day, same hour.

predictability is what strips it of the pressure feeling

STEP 03

Agree the signal, what forces an immediate heads up.

a slip longer than two days, a blocked dependency, a scope change

When the system does the chasing, you are free to unblock.

THE MODEL THAT STICKS

The Three Knots, in the order that matters.

Whoever has a ritual does not have to chase. Whoever does not chases and still does not know.

SAVE THIS FOR LATER in the next agreement you make with someone.

FABIO GARCIA
MANAGEMENT AS ENGINEERING
/IN/FALERCIA